This analyst meeting is a live broadcast and will be replayed on the Internet at two sites: streetevents.com and amd.com. I would like to caution everyone that we will be making forward-looking statements about management's goals, plans and expectations.

As you know the semiconductor industry is generally volatile. Our product and process technology development and our manufacturing processes are complex. Current economic and industry conditions continue to make it especially difficult to forecast product demand; because our actual results may differ materially from our plans and expectations today, I encourage you to review our filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission where we discuss in detail the risk factors in our business. You will find detailed discussions in our most recent 10Q filing with the SEC.
